SHOUTOUT!~

Senior Issue!!! I am proud to say that Scope has had an AMAZING, successful first year of existence on ISU's campus. This is our 4th and final issue of Scope for the 2012-2013 school year. This has been one long and hard year but I am very proud of the progress the staff and I have made. I am also proud to say that THE WEBSITE IS DONE!!

Not to get too sentimental (tear), but once again, I would like to thank everyone for their undeniable support of the magazine and the Cloud Arts and Entertainment Committee events. This has been one wild ride, through all the trials and tribulations, and I am so appreciative of everyone sticking with the staff and me and for believing in my dream. We are getting better and better issue after issue and this is just the beginning. As I always say, Scope might be my baby but it did not come into existence for personal gain and recognition. All of its readers and supporters are what brought it to life; I have done this all for you all!

This is our 1st annual Senior Issue, highlighting the students who have graduated in December of 2012, as well as May 2013 graduates. We have even added in seniors that will still be here next year so no shame in your game if you are a 5th year; we will like to celebrate your accomplishments as well. Although this is one of our shorter issues, with it being the end of the school year, this have been one of the most difficult issues to compose because everyone is so busy doing all they can to finish the year out strong and we cannot intervene on success.

Some featured articles in this issue includes the International Fair, our forever reoccurring articles such as Shoeicide, Fashionista/o of the month, and #TT of the month, as well as the NBA Playoffs. In honor of the seniors, we have included a special edition of "Highlighted Redbirds", which includes a post-graduation interview with December 2012 ISU graduates, Matthew Augustin and David Douglas. We also added some funny "Senior Class Notables" to the mix as well, where the seniors both nominated and voted for each other in the respective categories. Although this issue is solely online, I hope it has a lasting effect on the senior class and that everyone reads and enjoy it as much as they did the printed copies.
